

Daniel Kahnemann's Emporium

Précis:

- Daniel Kahnemann's Emporium, Purveyor of Hermeticals, Mysticals and Curios
- Daniel Kahnemann runs a magic shop. He appears to be a skinny man with a beard who speaks with a lisp. In reality he is a demon who resembles a mind flayer.
- His shop is actually a portal to another dimension. Though it appears unremarkable. It will usually be "close-by" if the players want to visit it. It's location changes at the whim of the inscrutable Mr Kahnemann. There's also a slight and very subtle charm on the place so that players don't realize this.
- If discovered Kahnemann will claim to be defenseless and merely a trader trying to go about his job. In actuality he delights in the suffering of others and will try to sell acurs'd items to his patrons, trade them for their real names so that he may control them using magic, or trade them for their immortal souls.

Outs:

-
-

Purpose:

-
-